Overdoing Real Estate

Once again The Commercial feels it to be a duty devolving upon it to warn the people of the west against the real estate fever.
There are at present indications that the prosperity of the country will be taken advantage of to boost almost anything in the shape of land as town or city lots.
Elsewhere we are drawing attention to the fact that bankers and other financial men are trying to prevent extremes in this form of investment. It should be the duty of every citizen to discourage extravagance of this kind,
and at any rate to be cautious
not to get caught in the whirlpool themselves.

No aggressive have some real-estate vendors become that this week, and perhaps previous to this week, agents have been going from house to house coaxing
the people to invest in lots in subdivisions on the outskirts of towns far from Winnipeg. Probably smooth agents have been going so far as to try to induce women to invest any savings they may have, when the men are not found at home.

Men of experience in affairs of the west and other parts of the Dominion call attention to what has on different occasions happened to spare money put into outside lots in towns that perhaps for a temporary spell had a period of special booming. In many cases these lots are today being plowed for farming purposes.

In the case of a large city, one may feel reasonably safe in buying lots a considerable distance from the business centre, for the city, in all probability, will grow in all directions and property become more valuable. Every town in the country, however,
cannot expect to be a Winnipeg,
or a Vancouver, and we do not say this with any purpose of "knocking." It would be our delight to see every village and town in western Canada grow rapidly and continue prosperous.
We are of the opinion, though, that it is absurd to parcel off subdivisions perhaps a mile or two from the center of a town of but a few hundred population, as is being done, from all accounts, in some instances today.

The extremes to which a certain class of real estate vendors are trying to go cannot very well be prevented except by legislation, and the time is ripe for exercising some control in the matter in those provinces. We suggested before that the real estate exchanges, in their own and other people's interests, take steps to curtail the operations of the unscrupulous element that bear the name of real estate agents, who,

if justice were done, would not be in the business at all.—Commercial.

Ruling the Western Rates

The west is in a fair way to get adjustment of railway freight rates. That will undoubtedly be the result, if the advantage gained this week at the sittings of the Railway Commission at Ottawa will be followed up. It is said that only about one hour was devoted last Tuesday to the case of the west against the railways, but that hour was evidently a lively one.

When M. K. Cowan, K.C., council in the matter of Saskatchewan and Alberta, began to present his case, there was present the usual quota of railway officials, ready to be as plausible
as they are accustomed to be.
They met their match. Mr.
Cowan forced the railway representatives to admit that for similar traffic in like quantities the service given by the railways in the east and the west is practically similar. Statistics were then presented to show that the freight rates in the west were all the way from 20 per cent. to 160 per cent. higher west of the Great Lakes than in the east,
while there was not a great deal of difference in the cost of operating and maintenance.

Mr. Cowan claimed in conclusion that he had made out a prima facie case against the companies, and that it is up to them to prove that there is no discrimination against the west in the matter complained of. In the opinion of the people of the west, the railways will have a great task on their hands to prove any such thing.

The Commission meets again on April 29, in Toronto, when the companies are expected to have the information asked for. An interesting session is expected.—

Why He Was Late

"What made you so late?"
"I met Saulson."
"Well, that is no reason, why you should be an hour late getting home to supper."
"I know, but I asked him how he was feeling, and he insisted on telling me about his stomach trouble."
"Did you tell him to take Chamberlain's Tablets?"
"Sure, that is what he needs."

HAUNTED

BY
GERTRUDE WARDEN

Harry became pale with anger. "Do you know the lady?" he asked. "Hatter!" the young man returned with a nod and a wink as he leaped back to his place by the driver of the dogcart. "Take my tip! The next time I meet you it may be in a very different character, and you may possibly have reason to regret that you were quite so stand-off 'Tatie'!"

He had stared impatiently straight into Harry's face as he had spoken of Lady Anne, and suddenly it flashed across the young American that the fellow's brilliant, dark eyes, deep-set under straight black eyebrows and rather near together, bore a marked resemblance to the eyes of the fascinating groveller, foreigner in the Bloxham train, who had called himself Leopold Sart.

He stood staring at the dogcart as it disappeared in a cloud of dust, while he assured himself that the likeness must be accidental. The traveller in the train appeared to be about forty years of age; this man, on the other hand, seemed under thirty. Leopold Sart was a foreigner, and his manners had a singular charm, whereas Harry's recent companion had something bumptious and aggressive in his bearing. The callousness he had shown when he had shot at the farm idiot after locking him in the cupboard disgusted Harry. He felt curious to know what account of his would Sammy would give to Mrs. Anning and to his protectors, Mr. Warren and Lady Anne Daubney.

And then, his thoughts having brought him round to Lady Anne again he dismissed all other subjects from his mind.

He felt almost glad as he made his way among the laurel trees, the pines and young oaks of the plantation, in the semi-darkness of their overhanging branches, to think of the lively French girl whom he had left at the Abbey gates a few hours before. He hoped that Lady Anne would keep her. She would at least bring a little life and youth into that melancholy place among the elderly foreign women-servants, Anning, the gardener, and Grainer Jessop's "wild man" Stephen Jessop, whom she had called the "master of Leders."

Harry resented the term, and the notion that his quickly Lady Anne should be tyrannised over by an aged, paralysed steward, husband of the peasant woman at the gatehouse. He was still lost in wondering surmises as to this point and the identity of the figure tracking them through the clometers, when, at a turn in the path, he came upon the beautiful vision of the lakes, or, as the boys were called locally, "Silly-van's lakes."

They lay vast and stately, shining under the summer sun, and were edged by little islands upon which poplars and willows and flowering acacia trees were planted. Wide

Eczema 25 Years Cured by "Cuticura"

Leg Like Raw Flesh from Kne Down

"I have been treated by doctors for twenty-five years for a bad case of eczema on my leg. They did me all sorts of things to cure it. My own doctor had advised me to try the Cuticura Remedies. He said, 'Try them if you like but I do not think they will do any good.' I tried them, and the first week I used them my skin began to feel better. After the second week I had to walk on crutches. I bought a case of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and a bottle of Cuticura Remedies. After the first two treatments the swelling went down and in two months' use of the Cuticura Remedies my leg was cured and the skin grew new. The doctor could not believe his own eyes when he saw that Cuticura had cured me and said that he would use Cuticura for his own patients. But for the Cuticura Remedies I never have lost my leg. I am truly grateful for the wonderful cure that Cuticura brought and I always recommend it most highly as a skin and economical cure for eczema." (Signed) Miss J. B. Remond, 277 Main St., Boston.

feverish in profusion, the great white flowers and the stout yellow buds, were there, and a few clumps of the rarer lotus in purple and in pink; flowering reeds and tall bullrushes, with masses of forget-me-nots and meadow-sweet blossoms clustered at the water's edge, and on the further side of the lakes the background of trees was broken by boathouses and garden-sets of marble in a classic design.

Not far from where he stood, enraptured by the beauty of the scene, a punt was being propelled by a broad-built youth in his shirt sleeves. Facing him on the cushions sat a handsome, rosy-cheeked young woman, and by her side, dragging his hand through the water, nestled a little yellow-haired boy of striking prettiness.

The boat-lad gave just the human touch of youth and comeliness required to complete the scene. But even while Harry's eyes were upon it, the charming effect was changed to one of tragic import. The child, fascinated by the sight of a lily bud, stretched both hands eagerly out of the punt. His companions were too much occupied in their talk to notice him, and in an instant he had fallen over into the water.

The young man sprang up, shrieking loudly.

"For God's sake, jump in and save him, William!" she cried to the young man. "Are you going to let my nephew drown before my eyes? He has gone down again!" "Taddy, Taddy, my darling, catch at my hand!" William, you must jump in, or I will never forgive you.

"I cannot swim, Susan," the young man returned distractedly. "There's not a divediver if I was to jump. Ah! if all these vessels had! Cassem told this pole, Edwin! Don't jump, Susan, or they'll upset the boat."

Long before the young people had reached this point in their excited shouting, Harry had slipped off his coat and boots and sprung into the water. He was a champion swimmer, and the masses of water-plants made progress difficult and even dangerous, and he had to dive twice to reach the child, and then to surface the little figure of the child.

"Land the punt at once!" he called to the young man, as he scrambled with difficulty on to the bank after delivering the boy into his arms.

"The small face looked pink and livid, but Harry could feel a feeble flutter of his heart, and began at once working to bring back respiration, moving the child's arms backward and forward, and blowing into his nostrils, endeavoring until almost faint himself. William, feeling shamefaced before the strange boy, who, despite his best to bring the boy quickly to land, and hurriedly moved to put the little fellow up, by Susan's orders.

"Do you live, at Leders' Abbey?" asked Harry; "because you must not drive there until the boy has revived somewhat. You must take him to this village here and wrap him in hot blankets and give him a little brandy. I will come with you and see you through it."

"Oh, sir, I can't thank you enough!" protested the still sobbing Susan. "I never have dared to face Gram nor again if anything had happened to my little nephew. He's such a pet—the dearest little fellow in the world. Everybody loves him except Lady Anne."

The last words struck Harry oddly. It would be difficult to say whether he would have thought to avoid being so good, had he, delicate-looking child, with eyes as blue as those of his aunt Susan Jessop, who was up and clutching him to her breast in a moment. Harry had slipped off his coat and boots and sprung into the water. He was a champion swimmer, and the masses of water-plants made progress difficult and even dangerous, and he had to dive twice to reach the child, and then to surface the little figure of the child.

"Now we must get back quickly to the Abbey," Susan said. "Lady Anne has gone to Dorchester to get a nice, respectable old servant in place of that new French woman whom she can't abide. I want to be home first, for she might chance to ask after our Teddy in passing through the lodge gates—though she hates the very sight of the poor child."

CHAPTER XVII.
The Forbidden Room.

No one is more obstinate than a man in love. Lady Anne was already trying to get rid of her pretty young French servant who had come to join her mother, and she actually "bated the sight" of the most inoffensive, sweet little child it was possible to imagine. But Harry sternly told himself that all this was mere "servants' gossip," and went on mentally worshipping at the shrine he had raised to Lady Anne.

No ghostly hands troubled his rest that night, though he was ready and waiting for them with his electric light and his pistol under his pillow. He did not tell Mrs. Anning of his experience of the preceding night, or her husband either. He had an instinctive feeling that the wife would know nothing, and that the husband would tell nothing. But he had learned from her that "Soft Sammy" had not been seen at the farm since the afternoon of Harry's first visit to L'Arcton, and decided that the idiot was probably nursing his wound elsewhere.

He made a point of asking that Lady Anne's blue and grey jacket be placed before him every meal, and during his breakfast he drew volume Mrs. Anning on the subject of the last night's dream.

NERVOUS DISEASES IN THE SPRING

Cured by Toning the Blood and Strengthening the Nerves.

It is the opinion of the best medical authorities, after long observation, that nervous diseases are more common and more serious in the spring than at any other time of the year. Vital changes in the system after long winter months, may cause such nervous trouble as the familiar spring weakness and weariness from which most people suffer as the result of indoor life, in poorly ventilated and often over-heated buildings. Official records prove that in April and May neurasthenia, St. Vitus dance, chorea, and other nervous troubles are at their worst, and that then, more than at any other time, a blood-purifying, nerve-restoring tonic is needed.

The untutored custom of taking purgatives in the spring is useless, for the system really needs strengthening, while purgatives only sap the strength, leaving you weaker. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine, for they actually make the weak, rich, red blood that feeds the starved nerves, and thus restores the many forms of nervous diseases. They cure also such other forms of spring troubles as headaches, poor appetite, weakness in the limbs, as well as remove unsightly pimples and eruptions. In fact they unsparingly bring new health and strength to weak, tired and depressed men, women and children.

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 (money refunded). Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"My Business Is Unique."

We are told by the old-time circus men and dime museum operators that good freaks used to command large salaries. Barnum's "dog faced boy" is said to have drawn $200.00 a week—you see he was the only dog faced boy in the world—he was unique.

Most of us—even if we could be freaks—would prefer to make our money some other way. And, anyway, the "freak" stuff is about played out—even in the circus business.

It is surprising to find an otherwise hard headed business man who takes a strange, abnormal joy in posing as a freak. He doesn't even know he is posing. Ponderously in earnest, he would not dream of describing his business as "freakish"—but delights in saying it is "unique"—which really amounts to the same thing.

Some manufacturers "play freak" only when talking to an advertising man. They keep that word "unique" tucked back under the tongue all ready to use whenever anyone suggests that they should advertise. "Oh, my business is unique—it cannot be advertised successfully."

Haven't you often heard it? Have you ever said it yourself? Let us not try to qualify for the dime museum. Let us get down to selling goods. And selling goods—no matter what the goods are—is easier if the goods are advertised.

You say your proposition is "different?" Very well, advertise it in a "different" way.

An Actual Experience that Completely Routs the "Unique" Theory

They market a product which their sales manager was wont to refer to as "the hardest thing in the world to advertise." But a persistent advertising man kept hammering at the door of skepticism, and he finally agreed to "test out" an advertising campaign. A sales manager in his business—twelve months' trial was agreed binding.

Sunnyslope Gets Good Horse

G. Dolson, salesman for Graham Bros., horse importers of Carberry, Man., made a good sale to Nelson Bros. of Sunnyslope last week, in fact it is reported one of the best sales of the season. The horse that Messrs. Nelson bought was Mabelle (imp.) [10,000], which is described by expert horsemen to be one of the most typical draft sires ever shown in the west. He is a prize winner of note, winning the $100 Manitoba Free Press cup at Neepawa and Portage La Prairie against all breeds, and was second at Chicago International when two years and seven months old. This horse weighed 1780 when taken off the boat.

Mr. Dolson also sold Hopetown of Silversprings (imp.) to Mr. Wright of Erskine. This horse was fourth in the three year olds at Calgary in a class of nineteen.

On the first day that a young man began his duties as reporter on a popular paper a report came from a man in town that there was a terrible fire raging. The editor of the paper immediately sent the news reporter to the place, and, upon arriving there, he found that the firemen were unable to get control of the fire, so sent this telegram to the editor: "Fire still raging. What shall I do?" The editor was so mad that he wired back at once: "Find out where the fire is the hottest and jump in."

Movement for Good Roads

Moved by the same high public spirit and the single purpose of bringing the roads of Canada up to a standard that will be a credit to the nation and an example to the world at large, His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught and W. J. Kerr, one of the two highest positions in the gift of the Canadian Highway Association, that of patron and president respectively.

The Canadian highway will be an accomplished fact within the next few years, and the outside world will then know that in this broad Dominion there is a road more than 3,000 miles long over which an automobile can travel from coast to coast in safety and with comfort. The country that offers the wealthy tourist the splendid roads that Canada will have, the magnificent scenery and exceptional opportunities for investment, will reap a large harvest from its visitors.

This association was formed in New Westminster, B. C., last November, and it was at this meeting that Mr. Kerr, a wealthy resident of the coast and the principal mover in the convention that resulted in the formation of the association, was elected president. Some time later the Governor-General of Canada, whose activity in the cause of good roads is well known to those interested in this work, was approached and requested to permit his name to be used as that of patron, the following resolution being forwarded to him after a meeting of the executive of the association.

Moved by W. J. Kerr, seconded by Vice President A. E. Todd—"His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, Governor General of Canada, having in many ways shown his interest in good roads, and more particularly by his speech from the throne at the last formal opening of parliament, be it therefore resolved, that the secretary extend to His Royal Highness the thanks of the other—the Canadian Highway Association for lending its influence to the cause of roads improvement, and further,

"That the secretary respectfully informs His Royal Highness that it is the earnest desire of the members of this association that His Royal Highness should consent to become patron of the Canadian Highway Association."

The following reply was received a few days ago by P. W. Luce, secretary of the association:

Government House, Ottawa. Dear Sir—I am desired by the Governor-General to acknowledge receipt of your letter, and to inform you in reply that His Royal Highness will be pleased to become patron of the Canadian Highway Association as requested by your executive committee.

His Royal Highness is much interested in the subject of good roads, and wishes your association every success. I am yours faithfully, Arthur F. Sladen, private secretary.

The Duke of Connaught has long been interested in good roads and has shown in many ways that he is strongly in sympathy with any movement that will tend to better the transportation facilities of this or any other country. Travelled man as he is, and trained in observations of things that make for the public good, His Royal Highness has put to practical use the knowledge gained in Canada, England, on the continent, and in foreign countries, and he believes he has acted wisely in allowing his name to become associated with the enterprise fostered by the Canadian Highway Association.

"Good roads are a social and economic necessity, and good roads are well known to be a social and economic necessity. I am ready to acknowledge that the work of the Canadian Highway Association is finished," said President W. J. Kerr. And he means every word of it.

C.P.R. CALGARY SHOPS

Great Car Shops to be Erected by the C.P.R. at Calgary to be Known as The Ogden Shops.

The great car shops which the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. is erecting near Calgary, Alberta, will rank amongst the biggest undertakings of Canada's great transcontinental road. They are happily named the "Ogden Shops" in honor of Mr. I. G. Ogden, one of the vice-presidents of the company, and the town which will grow up around them is also to be called Ogden. The shops are of course, to be of the most modern construction and equipment, and will consist of a group of twenty buildings, and occupy an area of 129 acres of land, the locomotive works alone covering from six to eight acres. The Ogden shops are intended by the C.P.R. to provide for the repairs to equipment on its western lines. That they will have plenty of work to do is evidenced from the fact that the Canadian Pacific Railway makes it a point to completely overhaul its rolling stock at least once a year. This company does this so that its equipment may always be in the highest possible state of efficiency. A few years ago the Angus shops at Montreal and the shops at Winnipeg were sufficient for this work, but the C. & P.R.'s equipment has increased so greatly within last few years, that the Ogden shops are a necessity. Between two and three thousand men will be employed, and they will be systematically housed on a modern plan that will make the town of Ogden one of the world's model towns of industry and an ideal residential place for the workmen.

The naming of the shops after Mr. Ogden is a particularly happy choice. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, for that gentleman is one of the real old guard of the C.P.R., a veteran of the road, having for thirty-one years given the best of his talents to the company's service.

A New Yorker by birth, belonging to a family of financiers, his forefathers having been bankers, Mr. Ogden has spent the larger portion of his busy life in the finance departments of railways. In 1871 he became paymaster and accountant of the Chicago & Pacific Railway and five years later was auditor of that company. The high reputation he gained with the C. & P.R. attracted attention towards him, and at the birth of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company in 1881 he was selected to take charge of the finances of the western division of the road, with headquarters at Winnipeg. Two years excellent work in the west was followed by his promotion to the position of chief auditor of the entire system, the higher title of controller being bestowed upon him in 1889. Other honors quickly followed, and in 1901 he was made vice-president of the company, having naturally the finances of the large corporation particularly under his charge.

During all these years Mr. Ogden displayed rare financial ability and acumen, and in the struggling days of the company—and there were not a few of them in the eighties and the early nineties—his advice and knowledge materially aided in tiding the C.P.R. over many a financial difficulty. His work, indeed, would form a large part of the history of the C. P. R.

In having the Company's huge works at the foot of the Canadian Rockies named after him, Mr. Ogden is paid a justly deserved tribute—a tribute none the less to his many excellent qualities of head and heart than to his great financial genius and to his long years of loyalty and faithfulness to the company, in which he has been associated from its infancy, and with which he has grown to see it take the foremost place amongst the great transportation companies of the world.

When Oranges Were Taboo in Holland.

Oranges were for some years a prohibited fruit in Holland. When the Batavian republic was established the badge and color of the Stadholder's family became so hateful to the popular party that not satisfied with expelling their prince, they passed a law forbidding the sale of oranges and carrots, and ordering all persons who knew lilies or marigolds in their gardens to pluck up the plants and destroy them. This prohibition remained in force until 1806, when Napoleon made his army the King of Holland—London Chronicle.

Sudden changes of temperature are fatal in results. The shock to the human system is more than most people can stand, and everywhere you hear sneezing and coughing.

A LOVELY BABY BOY

This Mother is Quite Enthusiastic Over a Well Known Food.

Mrs. J. W. Pateman, 34 Harriet St., Toronto, in writing about Neave's Food says: "When I first knew one of my friends her baby Jack was eight months old and dying by inches. She had tried three foods because her Jack could not digest milk. At last I fetched her a tin of Neave's Food. At the end of a month, Jack was rapidly gaining flesh and was bright and happy. He is a lovely boy now and she declares Neave's Food saved his life. And it did."

Then I recommended it to a friend on Victoria Avenue. She had a baby months old that was not thriving a bit. She put the baby on Neave's Food and at the end of three months the baby was twice the size. I have never seen two bigger, stronger boys than mine for their age and we owe it all to Neave's Food. I have the utmost faith in Neave's Food."

"Overseas" Club Formed

A meeting was held in the Jackson block on Friday evening last to form a local branch of the Overseas Club which is becoming such a strong organization all over the British Empire. The local branch starts with a membership of nearly forty and prospects are good for a much larger membership when it becomes known that the club has been formed in Didsbury.

Preliminary organization work was done at the first meeting, and the officers and executive committee appointed as follows:

President—Mayor H. B. Atkins.
Vice-President—H. E. Osmond.
Executive Committee—H. D. Hooker, Geo. Watson, H. Gathercole, A. Murdoch, Sam. Vrienden, E. Fischer.

It was also decided to charge a membership fee of $1 per year for current expenses.

The main object of the parent club is to help one another and to draw together in the bond of comradeship the peoples now living under the folds of the British flag and to insist on the vital necessity of the Empire of Irish supremacy on the sea.

The objects of the local branch are: To bring together in friendship members of the "Overseas" clubs residing in Didsbury.

To extend the hand of fellowship to members arriving from or passing through to other parts.

To create and foster an intelligent interest in the welfare of the British Empire by placing before the individual a clear idea of the duties, responsibilities and privileges personally imposed by British citizenship.

To support kindred societies, or movements working on patriotic lines for the welfare of the British Empire.

To encourage and assist in all constitutional ways in maintaining the prestige of the British Empire.

To establish club premises which shall be available for the use of members of this or visiting members of any other branch.

For the purpose of furthering the objects of the club the committee shall from time to time prepare a syllabus of lectures, debates, socials, picnics and sports, especially on New Year's day, Empire Day (24th of May), King's Birthday, and the anniversary of the foundation of the club, an Empire Day celebration to be held and the proceeds to go to some benevolent object.

Another meeting was held on Monday night when it was decided to draft a resolution of sympathy for the survivors and bereaved from the late Titanic disaster, the resolution to be sent to the headquarters of the club in London, Eng.

A smoker will be held shortly to bring the members together for a social evening and to discuss the plans for getting up a celebration on Empire day.

After transacting other business in connection with the interior economy of the club the meeting adjourned.

Heartless if True

Washington, April 22.—With sorrow only five miles away, the Titanic slid into its watery grave carrying with it more than 1600 of its passengers and crew, while an unidentified steamer that might have saved all failed or refused to see the Titanic's signals flashed to it for aid.

This phase of the tragic disaster was brought out today before the senate investigation committee when J. B. Boshall, fourth officer of the Titanic, told of his unsuccessful attempts to attract the stranger's attention. This ship, according to Boshall, could not have been more than five miles away and was steaming towards the Titanic. So close was it that from the bridge Boshall plainly saw its masthead lights and then its red light.
